DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3 and 5-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shaolian et al. (U.S. Patent No. 7,641,658) in view of Middleton et al. (U.S. Patent Application Publication 2002/0183758).

Shaolian et al. disclose a reamer (see FIGS. 9 and 10) for preparing a cavity in the intramedullary canal a long bone, the reamer comprising a first component (ref. #238) for preparation of the cavity in the canal, the first component including a portion thereof for placement at least partially in the cavity of the long bone, the first component defining a rotational centerline thereof; and a rigid second component (ref. #236) operably connected to the first component, the second component defining a rotational centerline thereof, the rotational centerline of the first component and the rotational centerline of the second component having a first relationship in which the centerlines are coincident and a second relationship in which the centerlines are skewed with respect to each other (see FIG. 10). The reamer includes a rotatable locking arrangement (ref. #246) by which the first and second components can be locked against relative movement from the second to the first relationship. The reamer further comprises a joint (ref. #240) operably connected to the first component and to the second component, the joint adapted to provide the first relationship in which the centerlines are coincident and the second relationship in which the centerlines are skewed with respect to each other. The locking arrangement includes a pin (ref. #240). The first component includes a portion thereof having a tapered external periphery and wherein the second component includes a portion thereof having a drive connection. The reamer can be used in a femur. The first component and the second component are hinged to each other (at ref. #240). The first component and the second component define openings therein for receiving a pin (at ref. #240).

Shaolian et al. discloses the claimed invention except for the first component including a plurality of flutes (rather, Shaolian et al. disclose a blade-like first component).

Middleton et al. discloses a blade-like first component (see ref. #320, FIG. 5A) that comprises a cutting tip (ref. #330) including cutting flutes (ref. #360) to aid in cutting the tissue.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the blade-like first component of Shaolian et al. with a cutting tip including cutting flutes in view of Middleton et al. in order to aid in cutting the tissue.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
